

have bin graunted forthe againste his landes for the paiement and answeringe of the same duties to her Majestie though he cannott gett the same of the undertenautes and tenautes, albeit he dothe informe us he hathe done his beste indeavour to collecte the saide rentes and duties, and there is alsoe certaine impositions demaunded of the tenautes wrongfullie exacted by the Earle of Desmonde, as they alledge, and more then have bin accustomed to be paid. Wee have thoughte good therefore to praie your Lordship that examinacion maie be made what he or any for him hathe received of suche rentes, so as the same maie be answered to her Majestie, and yf yt shall appeare that he p. 282. hathe not nor can receive those rentes, then that his letters patentes maie be renewed and altered in that behalf to chardge him noe further with the paiement of those rentes and duties then he shalbe able to gather the same, or at the leaste to take order that althoughe by his letters patentes he be chardged with the collectinge of the saide rentes and services, nevertheles that he maie not be forced to answeare more then he shall gather of the tenautes, and that staie maie be made of suche proces as hathe bin awarded forthe of her Majesty's Courte of Exchequer against him in this behalf, and that some order maie be taken for the levyenge and answeringe of those rentes whereby her Majestie maie be dylie satisfied as shee oughte to be. So praienge you herein to take order either by theis or anie other meanes you shall thincke meete that the gentleman maie be holpen in this pointe of his letters patentes that doe chardge him somewhat straighte, and to answeare noe further those rentes and duties to her Majestie then he shalbe able to gather the same of the undertenautes, &c.

A letter to the Bishop of Norwich and the reste of the Comissioners in the countie of Norffolk. Wee have received your letters and the certificate of those Recusantes that were convented before you within the countie of Norffolk, whereby wee perceive that by your discreete meanes and good indeuours manie of them have bin diswaded from theire undutyfull cariage bothe to God and her Majestie's lawes, and are contented to conforme themselves and repaire unto the Church to heare Divine service as good and dutyfull subjectes oughte to doe, wherein wee are gladde to see soe good fruite of your labor and travell, so we can doe noe lesse then to give our hartie thanckes for the same and doe meane to acquainte her Majestie therewithall, to whom wee assure our selves it wilbe greate contentement. Concerninge those that are obstinate Recusantes wee thincke it meete there should a good eye be had over them, and where it dothe appeare by your certificate that divers are fledd oute of that countie to lurke and hide them selves in other places, wee are to put you in mynde that there is a clause in the commission whereby you are required, if you can heare of theire beinge in anie place, to write to the Commissioners in those counties for theire apprehencion. Wee praie your Lordships to certefie unto us the names of those Recusantes that you finde moste obstinate and perverse, and that are of ability and moste to be doubted.

The Recusants in Norfolk.

Lawlessness
in Anglesey.

p. 283.

A letter to the Bishop of Bangor. Wee perceive by your Lordship's letter and reporte of Fowlke Thomas the paines by him [taken] in th'apprehencion of a Seminary preist and other suspected persons which were taken from him by the Undersheriffe of Anglesey and the escape made by Roberte ap Hughe, a man greatlie noted and knowne to be verye evill affected, as also the negligence of certaine constables who refused to give theire aide and assystance for the staie and apprehencion of those leude persons, who yf they had performed theire dutie had bin apprehended and forthcoming. Wee have thoughte good therefore to praie your Lordship by vertue hereof to sende for the Undersheriffe and to chardge him with this matter, causinge him to yealde his reason why he tooke those persons from Foulke Thomas, and if by his meanes anie of them are escaped, wee thincke meete good bondes to be taken of him for his appearance before us and the like of the constable of Lyvon or anie other that upon th'examination of this matter you finde to have dealte lewdlie to further the escape of this badd persons. Wee are also to require your Lordship to doe your beste indeavour for the findinge oute and apprehencion of Roberte ap Hughe or anie of the reste escaped, for which purpose your Lordship shall by vertue hereof require in her Majestie's name the assystaunce of anie Deputie Lieutenauntes, Justices of the Peace, Maiour, Constable or other officer whatsoever. In the meane season wee praie your Lordship to cause th'examinacions to be severallie and carefullie taken of those that are apprehended, and to urge them to reveale the names of the reste that are escaped and where they thincke they maie be had, in what places they have bin, whether they meante to passe and suche other interrogatories as you shall thincke fitte to be demaunded of them.

A letter to John Edmondes, gentleman. Whereas Roberte Cole alias Plumer, one of the Master Cookes of her Majestie's Housholde, as he hathe informed us, reposinge in you confidence and truste and takinge noe other advise or counsell but yourselfe, hathe bin muche abused in a certaine deede of guifte which was by your owne meanes and perswasions made to yourselfe of the said Plum[er]'s goodes, and after by you intangled for paiement of five hundreth poundes to a lewde fellowe, one Hanmer, contrarie to the meaninge or understandinge of Plumer or his wife, againste all reason, which dealinge wee muche mislike, especially to proceede from a man of learninge who shoulde holde conscionable and indifferent courses in suche causes of truste and assuraunce. Theis are therefore to require you to deliver unto the saide Plumer or to suche as he shall by his letter assigne all suche writings as you have of his, and also to regraunt and release the said goodes as Plumer or his counsell shall devise, or in defaulte thereof that you forthwith repaire in the companie of this bearer before us to answere the same and suche further matter as by us shalbe objected to you.

A breach of trust.

The complaints of Miler
Magrath.

p. 284.

A letter to the Lord Deputie and Lord Chauncellour of Irelande. Whereas we wrote verie earnestly unto you upon complainte exhibited unto us by the Archbishop of Casselles that divers of his tenautes, followers and freindes have received sondrie waies harde measure and verie greate injuries, some beinge detayned in prison, others havinge theire goodes seized upon and other harde courses taken against them, by which our letters wee did praie your Lordship and the reste of the Councell there not onely to cause redresse of theis injuries to be done unto them, and suche releife as upon th'examinacion of the matter in equitie mighte be due unto them, but in his Lordship's absence to staie theis and the like harde courses against them, and to give order that his saide tenautes, followers and freindes mighte be protected and favored in theis and all other theire honest causes and just complaints. Notwithstandinge theis our letters his Lordship dothe againe informe us that theis troubles and vexacions are still followed and prosecuted against them, whereof they can finde litle helpe and redresse, and that likewise by the indyrecte practize of his adversaries there have bin offices procured by which certaine landes appertaininge to his Bishopricke are founde to be concealed. Wee have therefore thoughte good to lett your Lordship understande that yf this his informacion be true wee have juste cause to finde ourselves agreived that noe better regarde hathe bin had of our former letters verie earnestlie written in the behalf of the saide Archbishop. Therefore upon the renewinge of this his complainte wee are againe to require you that theis his reasonable requestes maye receive a just and uprighte examinacion, that not onlie his tenautes, followers and freindes maie receive that releife and favor which in equitie and reason oughte to be given unto them, but likewise to staie the proceedinge in those offices founde againste him, and that noe advantage maie be taken in his absence by theis indyrecte meanes untill by due and orderlye course of lawe the same maie be evicted from him, consideringe his