therefore to consider the extent to which application of the Minnesota statute to compel the Jaycees to accept women infringes the group's freedom of expressive association.

An individual's freedom to speak, to worship, and to petition the government for the redress of grievances could not be vigorously protected from interference by the State unless a correlative freedom to engage in group effort toward those ends were not also guaranteed. See, e. g., Citizens Against Rent Control/Coalition for Fair Housing v. Berkeley, 454 U. S. 290, 294 (1981). According protection to collective effort on behalf of shared goals is especially important in preserving political and cultural diversity and in shielding dissident expression from suppression by the majority. See, e. g. Gilmore v. City of Montgomery, 417 U. S., at 575; Griswold v. Connecticut, 381 U. S., at 482–485; NAACP v. Button, 371 U. S. 415, 431 (1963); NAACP v. Alabama ex rel. Patterson, 357 U. S., at 462. Consequently, we have long understood as implicit in the right to engage in activities protected by the First Amendment a corresponding right to associate with others in pursuit of a wide variety of political, social, economic, educational, religious, and cultural ends. See, e. g., NAACP v. Claiborne Hardware Co., 458 U. S. 886, 907–909, 932–933 (1982); Larson v. Valente, 456 U. S. 228, 244–246 (1982); In re Primus, 436 U. S. 412, 426 (1978); Abood v. Detroit Board of Education, 431 U. S. 209, 231 (1977). In view of the various protected activities in which the Jaycees engages, see infra, at 626–627, that right is plainly implicated in this case.

Government actions that may unconstitutionally infringe upon this freedom can take a number of forms. Among other things, government may seek to impose penalties or withhold benefits from individuals because of their membership in a disfavored group, e. g., Healy v. James, 408 U. S. 169, 180–184 (1972); it may attempt to require disclosure of
