of private property without proper consent is 'unreasonable' unless it has been authorized by a valid search warrant." Camara v. Municipal Court, 387 U. S. 523, 528–529 (1967).

See Coolidge v. New Hampshire, 403 U. S. 443, 454–455 (1971); id., at 512 (WHITE, J., concurring and dissenting); Stoner v. California, 376 U. S. 483 (1964); United States v. Jeffers, 342 U. S. 48 (1951); McDonald v. United States, 335 U. S. 451 (1948); Agnello v. United States, 269 U. S. 20 (1925).

The respondents do not contend that business premises are not protected by the Fourth Amendment. Such a proposition could not be defended in light of this Court's clear holdings to the contrary. See v. City of Seattle, 387 U. S. 541 (1967); Go-Bart Co. v. United States, 282 U. S. 344 (1931); Silverthorne Lumber Co. v. United States, 251 U. S. 385 (1920). Nor can it be claimed that corporations are without some Fourth Amendment rights. Go-Bart Co. v. United States, supra; Silverthorne Lumber Co. v. United States, supra; Oklahoma Press Pub. Co. v. Walling, 327 U. S. 186, 205–206 (1946); Hale v. Henkel, 201 U. S. 43, 75–76 (1906). Cf. California Bankers Assn. v. Shultz, 416 U. S. 21 (1974); Federal Trade Comm'n v. American Tobacco Co., 264 U. S. 298, 305–306 (1924); Wilson v. United States, 221 U. S. 361, 375–376 (1911); Consolidated Rendering Co. v. Vermont, 207 U. S. 541, 553–554 (1908).

The Court, of course, has recognized that a business, by its special nature and voluntary existence, may open itself to intrusions that would not be permissible in a purely private context. Thus, in United States v. Biswell, 406 U. S. 311 (1972), a warrantless search of a locked storeroom during business hours, pursuant to the inspection procedure authorized by the Gun Control Act of 1968, 18 U. S. C. § 923 (g), was upheld:

"When a dealer chooses to engage in this pervasively
